Here is the link to all OMNI topical newsletters:

http://www.omnicenter.org/newsletter-archive/  For a knowledge-based peace, justice, and ecology movement and an informed citizenry as the foundation for change.  Here is the link to the Index:

http://www.omnicenter.org/omni-newsletter-general-index/

Contents #4 and #5 at end

Contents #6
Shehadeh: The Occupation
Kestler-D’Amours: Israel’s Apartheid Wall Extending Social Forum in Brazil on the Occupation
Veterans for Peace
APN Call to Jews to Defend Civility and Justice
Rachel Corrie Verdict
Parallel Cases
Bachevich, Israel/US
Safieh: Israel’s Mistreatment of Its Palestinians
Loewenstein & Moor: One State Solution

Contents #7
Sign J-Street Petition Against Closing Palestinian Mission Live from Palestine
Breaking the Silence: Israeli Soldiers’ Confessions
U.S. Campaign to End the Israeli Occupation
Art,
We knew this was coming, but we're still amazed at just how reckless it is.
Congress is already considering a measure that would expel the Palestinian diplomatic mission in Washington, DC to punish the Palestinians for seeking to upgrade their status at the United Nations last week.
At a time when Israel's survival as the democratic homeland of the Jewish people demands that the United States be looking for ways to encourage and deepen diplomacy, talk of ejecting one of the parties from the country defies logic. Taking such a draconian step would widely undermine confidence in the leadership role of the United States in resolving this conflict through a two-state solution, gravely harming the prospects for its achievement.

TELL YOUR SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVE TO OPPOSE ATTEMPTS TO FORCE THE CLOSURE OF THE PALESTINIAN MISSION TO THE US.

US lawmakers may disagree with the decision to bring the question of statehood to the General Assembly, but they should understand that it is a peaceful, non-violent move within the legal rights of the Palestinians.
President Abbas' approach to the UN is in stark contrast to the actions of Hamas, Islamic Jihad and other terror organizations. In just the past few weeks, we have seen vividly the consequences of the path being taken by those Palestinians who choose violence and terror and refuse to acknowledge Israel's right to exist. With such extremist groups eager to expand their power, American and Israeli security interests demand that the United States take steps that strengthen, rather than undermine, President Abbas and the institutions he oversees.

TELL CONGRESS TO REJECT THE DANGEROUS AND SELF-DEFEATING EFFORT TO EXPEL PALESTINIAN DIPLOMATIC OFFICES FROM THE US.

We'll send a message to your Senators and Representative, telling them to work with the President to ensure that the PLO is permitted to maintain its diplomatic mission to our country.

Thanks,
Jeremy Ben-Ami

About 50 Palestinians joined by a number of international activists blocked today the Apartheid Road 443 (known as Modi’in, which passes on West Bank lands, connecting Tel Aviv to Jerusalem). The road was blocked for about 30 minutes to Israeli and settler traffic. Soldiers and Border Police who arrived on the scene physically attacked protestors and journalists, and used pepper spray and sound bombs. One Palestinian protestor was detained and beaten. He was released an hour later.

This direct action was organized in light of the increasing settler terrorism against Palestinians and their properties during the current olive harvest season, including the torching, uprooting or setting fire to olive trees, the theft of harvested olives, and the attacking of Palestinian families while picking olives. Mohamad Khatib, of the PSCC emphasized, “We organized this action today to stress that as long as Palestinians suffer under the daily practices of the occupation and settler terror, Israeli daily life can’t continue on as normal.” Khatib added, “We call on people of conscience around the world to support the Palestinian struggle by engaging in the Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions campaign against...
Israel, and to take serious actions to boycott companies that are complicit with the Israeli apartheid, such as Veolia, which operates transportation routes that use Road 443, which is built on Palestinian lands."

Background, Road to nowhere: During the occupation of the West Bank in June 1967, the Israeli army destroyed the villages of Yalu, Beit Nuba and Amuasse in the Latrun enclave. "Canada Park" and a number of settlements were built on their lands. Most of the residents of these three displaced villages currently live in villages near Highway 443, such as Beit Liqya, Beit Sira and Beit Ur. In the eighties, thousands of acres were confiscated by Israel along the road, claiming that the road will serve as the main traffic artery for these villages to Ramallah. However, the road has been closed for years to Palestinian vehicles. Following the High Court ruling on Route 443, a small section of the road was opened last week for Palestinian traffic, but is still nearly useless for the villagers, as access to Ramallah from it is prohibited, turning it into a highway to nowhere for Palestinians.

Fadi Arouri

Protestors: Israeli daily life can’t continue on as normal while Palestinians suffer under settler terror..

Israeli authorities are threatening to deport two international activists, arrested yesterday at a non-violent action at a settlement supermarket, despite a judge ruling that they should be released. They are currently being held in immigration detention.

Earlier today, defense lawyers were informed that a judge had ruled that they should be freed without charge, but this ruling was ignored by Israeli police, who handed the two activists to the Ministry of Interior, to begin the deportation process. They could be flown back to their home countries within hours, despite never having been charged, let alone convicted of any crime. They have also been repeatedly denied contact with their lawyer.

Substantial legal costs have already been incurred. If they choose to fight this unjust deportation, then these will be even higher. We urgently need funds to challenge the Israeli tactic of deporting solidarity activists to prevent our work in the West Bank.

Freedom for international activists can also be key in legal processes for Palestinians who are arrested at the same time. Previously this month, four ISM activists and two Palestinian men were arrested. One of the Palestinian men was released just yesterday, following a judge’s decision that to keep him in prison after the international activists had been freed would be unjust and discriminatory.

Please donate now so that we can continue our work supporting the Palestinian cause.

DONATE HERE:
http://palsolidarity.org/donate/

URGENT — FUNDS NEEDED
International Activists Threatened With Illegal Deportation
By International Solidarity Movement, November, 2012

ISM-Palestine issued this appeal in October.

We wish it were exceptional but it is not. The Northern California Chapter has already sent $200, but we used to be able to send thousands. We are the only tax-exempt ISM chapter, and we realize that many of you prefer to donate by check. If you wish to send your donations in the enclosed remit envelope, therefore, we will assure that all of your funds goes to support our work, as we have for the last ten years.

—The ISM Team in Northern California.

“What cause have we to complain about their fierce hatred to us? For eight years now, they sit in their refugee camps in Gaza, and before their eyes we turn into our homestead the land and villages in which they and their forefathers have lived.”
During my visit to Palestine this summer, I met with an Israeli settler in an effort to learn more about the views of settlers living in the West Bank. My ultimate goal was to speak very little, listen a lot, and try to understand the thinking behind the settler point of view. My purpose was to try to understand his point of view in an effort to be able to explain it to others and argue effectively against it, so I spoke very little and allowed him to talk, which he was more than happy to do.

I spoke to a settler living in the Efrat settlement which is part of the Gush Etzion settlement bloc. It is located south of Jerusalem between Bethlehem and Hebron over 4 miles from the green line separating Israel and the West Bank and is on the Palestinian side of the apartheid wall. There are about 22,000 illegal settlers in Gush Etzion and 7000 of those live in Efrat.

All settlements within the West Bank have been deemed illegal under international law and are a violation of the Fourth Geneva Convention’s prohibition against an occupying power’s transfer of civilians into occupied territory. The Israeli government disputes this not by saying that population transfer is not occurring, or even that the boundary is disputed, but because Palestine was under occupation already when Israel conquered the territory, it was not bound by the Geneva Convention because it was a liberating army. The International Court of Justice, in an advisory opinion issued in 2004, has rejected this assertion and reaffirmed the position that all Israeli settlements within the West Bank are illegal under international law. The man that I spoke with one afternoon in August of 2012, was an American who made aliyah, which is the Jewish-only right to return to the holy land, in the early 1980s. He and his wife, also an American, first moved to Tel Aviv because they wanted to live “among their own kind.” He said they “wanted to raise their children with people who were like them.” And he said that while he loved America, he only wanted to live with other Jews. After a few years in Tel Aviv, he moved to Efrat because it was cheaper than living in the city and was closer to Jerusalem. He said he felt no particular attachment to the specific land the settlement was built on, but now that he had purchased his home, he felt entitled to keep living there. Regardless of the original illegality of the purchase apparently.

He asserted that none of the land in the settlement had been illegally confiscated, but had been purchased from the Israeli government. The problem with this is that it was not the Israeli government’s land to sell, and it was precisely this government that stole the land in question. He pointed to small bits of land near the settlement that still held olive trees that were tended by Palestinians as evidence that everything was legal.

But this is one of the legacies of colonialism. Palestinians who had been living on their land for hundreds of years, often did not hold official western legal documents outlining their holdings. So the small patches of Palestinian land that are still held by Arabs are often newer pieces adjacent to more ancient holdings that were purchased more recently during the British occupation.

Israeli courts held that these new purchases were the only legally held lands, and the rest were confiscated and used to build settlements.

Settlers like the one I interviewed were enticed to move there because the Israeli government heavily subsidized the housing in settlements in an effort to change the demographics within the West Bank and enlarge Israeli territory. The Israeli government is

Interview With a Settler
By Kelly Joiner, October 1, 2012

Settlers like the one I interviewed were enticed to move there because the Israeli government heavily subsidized the housing..

beholden to Zionist ideology that says that God gave Israel to them and so any action they might take to get that land back is justified.

This does not fit with traditional Jewish teachings about justice however. Abraham purchased the land for Sarah’s grave in Hebron parts of which are now being stolen by settlers on a daily basis. He would be ashamed of what is being done in the name of his God. As would most religious figures. Muhammad would be ashamed at the actions of many of his fringe followers, as would Jesus. As a Catholic, I am often ashamed of people who call themselves Christian and yet deny basic tenets of our faith that is based on love and equality.

Here is an analogy I was offered. Israel and the British at the time of Partition offered the Palestinians a state on 45% of their historic homeland in 1947 and offered 55% to Jews who constituted 30% of the population and owned only 6% of the land. Palestinians rejected this offer because they thought they would win in a war supported by other Arab nations. They were wrong. More territory was lost in 1967. “Now faced with almost nothing they have come crawling back like babies” (here he actually began to suck his thumb and talk like a baby) “Waaaah, I’m sowwy.” He adds, “So because they say sorry we are obligated to give them what they want?” Actually, you are obligated to give them what they want because what they want is to be treated like human beings and be allowed to live in the land they have lived on for thousands of years. But I digress. He then compared partition to a common business transaction. “Let’s say I offer to sell you this cake for $5. You try to negotiate the price lower and I refuse. You refuse to pay my price and walk away. If you come back tomorrow and I have sold the cake to someone else am I still obligated to sell you the cake for $5?” Yes, that’s exactly the same thing. Your homeland and a piece of cake. Perfect analogy. But it illuminates a lot. If you think of the invasion and occupation of Palestine as a business transaction, then Palestinians are simply trying to declare the contract null and void. There is no need to demonize them or paint them as scary, they are simply unsatisfied customers. It also means that you should not be so zealously attached to your product. Every businessman knows you don’t get emotional. It’s just business. Typically, the settler is applying different standards to others than for himself. Palestinians are hopelessly violent, emotional and scary. Israelis are just rational businessmen. I often see businessmen in America throwing rocks at children on their way to school.
Sure. Totally rational.
The settler also compared the situation to that of Native Americans in the US. As if I, as a beneficiary of American colonialism, would sympathize and collude with him. Some differences. First, the majority of atrocities committed in the US happened several hundred years ago. I was not a settler who pushed Native Americans off of their land, my ancestors were still in Europe when this was happening. Not that I didn’t benefit indirectly, I did and still do, but I do not bear personal responsibility for the actions. This settler is living on someone else’s land. He took it. He did.
Second, while I would not argue that similar atrocities were committed against Native Americans, I would argue that many of them are not still ongoing. Native Americans suffer from the same effects of institutionalized racism that African-Americans and other communities of color in America face. This racism is real, powerful, and harmful. But the fact remains that today Native Americans can leave their reservations whenever they like—they have freedom of movement. Though incarceration rates are far too high relative to their proportion of the population, we do have Wikipedia.
The settler-bypass road from Gilo into the Etzion settlement bloc.
He returned to the theme he began with, namely that he doesn’t want to live with anyone but Jews.. legal procedures and mechanisms for prohibiting torture by guards and policemen. We do not imprison children with adults, nor do children end up in military jails. We do not send our air force to bomb reservations, or poison their water and fields anymore. Our military does not target civilians on American soil. And while I do not often defend the US government, police, and military, I have to say that within the bounds of our own country, we are not as bad as Israel. Not that we are good.
But we at least have the sense to know that discrimination is wrong. It is illegal. And people who do bad things are supposed to be punished.
Does this always happen, no. Far too often, power is abused. But we do not legalize torture because it happens. We do not legalize stealing because some people will steal. At least not yet. But even if we did, I would not support that.
Once I was apparently unable to mask my disgust or shock when he was telling me that all Palestinians teach their children to hate Jews. At that point he backtracked and spent a lot of time trying to convince me he was right and eventually said, “But I don’t mean Christian Palestinians, I mean the Muslims.”
He tried to play on my Christianity several times by saying that Palestinian Christians were not bad guys; it was the Muslims that were a problem. He intimated that I would be OK with this type of intolerance because it was so common at home I guess. Those people are clearly not to be trusted, but Christians are fine. Of course this is despite the fact that the Israeli occupation makes no such distinction and Palestinian Christians are targeted just as harshly by the regime as Muslims. But even if this were not so, the nakedness of his prejudice was startling. I am from San Francisco, and I am not that old yet, so I am used to people having the sense to be ashamed of their racism. Not that it doesn’t come out, but when confronted, most people that I know feel bad afterwards, not unabashed. He really did remind me of a Klan member at that moment. Explaining why those people aren’t really people and don’t deserve the same respect as you and me. Eventually he returned to the theme he began with, namely that he doesn’t want to live with anyone but Jews. So the fact that other people have historic and meaningful ties to this land as well appears immaterial. He is an Israeli. They won a war. And God gave them the land. So might makes right. The fact that this Zionist philosophy of exclusivism is racist and antithetical to ideas of democracy seemed not to bother him. Then he returned to the idea that he and I were the same and it was the Arabs that were the problem. “9/11, that was Muslims” he told me. That’s when I knew it was time to leave. I think once you bring 9/11 into a discussion, it is a sign that you are out of rational arguments. It was such a bald-faced attempt at fear-mongering and racism I realized that I had nothing more to learn. Apparently the lessons of Exodus and the Holocaust were lost on him. The Old Testament says, “You shall not wrong a stranger or oppress him, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt.” (Exodus 23:21) And the lesson of the Holocaust is Never Again, not Never again to us. I do not accept that this settler and others like him should be allowed to continue to live on stolen land. I do not accept that there is something fundamentally different about the Palestinian people that means they are not entitled to basic human rights and the protection of international law. I do not accept that there is nothing we as Americans can do about this situation.
We must refuse to allow our government to continue to support this inhumanity in our name and with our money. We must educate other Americans about what is going on. And we must do this not because it is in our own interest, even though it is, but because it is the right thing to do. Doing the right thing is rarely easy. It means awkward conversations at work and at Thanksgiving dinner. It is our responsibility as Americans to act in solidarity with Palestinians by changing things here in the United States. This is the work. Yalla.
Kelly Joiner is an activist from Northern California working on issues affecting communities of color. In 2012 she spent the summer in the West Bank working with IMEMC news. She is currently working on research regarding Palestinian children in the Occupied Territories.
Uri Gnorant of the Israeli Bureau of Land Redemption was eager to see me. “I’m glad you’re here,” he said. “You reporters talk about how little we do for Palestinians. This is a chance to set the record straight. When it comes to environmental protection and conservation, no one could possibly do more than we do.
“Take water, for example. We have reduced Palestinian water consumption to less than a third of what it was in 1967. Nowhere in the world can boast such an accomplishment. Even the Israelis themselves cannot match it. Villages like Beit Furik and Beit Dajan, with a combined population of around 15,000 get by on only 12 tanker loads of water per day during the summer, and sometimes less, supplemented by some filthy ground water for their vegetable gardens. You can’t do better than that.
“Or fire prevention. You remember the terrible Carmel forest fire that we had in 2010? You never see anything like that in Palestinian areas, and this is because we removed a lot of the trees as a preventive measure. Some people say that the Carmel fire was due to the dead non-native European trees that we planted to hide hundreds of Palestinian villages that we destroyed in 1948, and that Palestinian olive and other fruit trees don’t have the same problem. Let me assure you that olive trees also burn, as our settlers have amply demonstrated. The solution is for them to be removed, which is the policy that we have put in place and are diligently pursuing.
“Our protection of the Palestinian marine environment in Gaza is also unmatched. Over the last twenty years, we have progressively put larger and larger areas under protection from fishing, so that now the area available for fishing is less than a fifth of what it used to be, and most of the fish are not in that area, anyway. We can assure you that there will be no overfishing in Palestinian waters!

“There are many other ways that we protect the environment that is exposed to Palestinian abuse. For example, Palestinian women have gathered wild herbs like thyme and sesame for thousands of years on the hills and in the valleys of what used to be called Palestine. We have put a stop to that and made it illegal, so as to protect these plants from further exploitation.

“We also can’t have grazing animals like sheep and goats eating up the natural herbs and grasses in the pastures. If Palestinians want fresh meat, let them buy their feed from Israeli merchants like nature intended, or get frozen meat from New Zealand, which we are happy to sell to the humanitarian organizations that keep Palestinians alive.

“As we know, however, human activity inevitably damages the environment in one way or another, no matter what policies we put in place. Our long term policy is therefore to eliminate as many of the Palestinian people as possible from as many places as possible that are under Israeli control, and also to expand the areas under Israeli control for the same reason.

“As you can see, our commitment to environmental protection of Palestinian land is unshakeable.”

Barb Weir is the pseudonym of a writer and human rights activist in Northern California.

Israeli Environmental Protection of Palestinian Land
By Barb Weir, August 4, 2012

Palestinians line up for water rations..

AP. The International Solidarity Movement (ISM) needs nonviolent resistance volunteers to stand with Palestinians against the theft and colonization of Palestinian land. You will witness and report human rights violations, participate in nonviolent demonstrations, resist home demolitions and land confiscations, accompany children and patients to school and hospital, remove roadblocks, or just share time with Palestinians, listen to them, and help ensure that their voices are heard. When you return to your community you will be better equipped to advocate for the freedom and self-determination of the Palestinian people.

More info: solidarity@ism-norcal.org, 510-236-4250, www.norcalism.org or www.palsolidarity.org

For more information or to register: www.ism-norcal.org

NORCAL ISM Support Group
405 Vista Heights Rd.
El Cerrito, CA 94530
www.ism-norcal.org
solidarity@ism-norcal.org 510-236-4250

1. Live From Occupied Palestine

livefromoccupiedpalestine.blogspot.com/

Nov 19, 2012 – This blog chronicles my time in Palestine and also provides news ... On Saturday, the IOF opened fire with live ammunition and rubber ..... on the testimony of one police officer who alleges that the activist hit him on the hand.

2. Palestinian people - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Palestinian_people

Of the Palestinian population who live abroad, known as the Palestinian ..... of life were living historical testimonies to Israelite practices in the biblical period.
3. Live from Palestine: International and Palestinian Direct Action

books.google.com › History › United States › 20th Century

Rating: 5 - 2 reviews

This book tells two stories that have become intertwined in the Middle East: the ...Review: Live from Palestine: International and Palestinian Direct Action ...

4. 6 chilling testimonies from occupied Palestine

Salon.com

www.salon.com/.../6_chilling_testimonies_from_occupied_Palestine_

by Laura Miller - in 72 Google+ circles - More by Laura Miller

3 days ago – 6 chilling testimonies from occupied Palestine .... searching for tunnels, how do people manage to get around — I mean, they live in the area.

5. Israeli War Crimes against Palestine: Witness Testimonies

Global Research

www.globalresearch.ca/israeli-war...palestine...testimonies/5312862

4 days ago – The following summary of testimonies presented to the Commission .....Now about 200,000 Palestinians live in and around East Jerusalem ...

Rev. Eyal Press, The Nation (Dec. 24/31, 2012). “What they tell you, in grim and granular detail, is how degrading and demeaning upholding the occupation has been to Israelis.”

Breaking the Silence (non-governmental organization)

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Website www.breakingthesilence.org.il

Shovrim Shtika is an Israeli Non-Governmental Organization (NGO), located in a western section of Jerusalem, established by Israel Defense Forces (IDF) soldiers and veterans who collect and provide testimonies about their military service in the West Bank, Gaza Strip, and East Jerusalem the Second Intifada, giving serving and discharged Israeli personnel and reservists a platform to confidentially describe their experience in the Israeli-occupied territories. The organization's stated mission is to 'break the silence' of IDF soldiers who return to civilian life in Israel and "discover the gap between the reality which they encountered in the [occupied] territories, and the silence which they encounter at home." Since 2004, Breaking the Silence has run a testimonies collection project called "Soldiers Speak Out" They have collected several hundred testimonies from "those who have, during their service in the IDF, the Border Guard, and the Security Forces, played a role in the Occupied Territories." By publishing soldiers' accounts, Breaking the Silence hopes to "force Israeli society to address the reality which it created" and face the truth about "abuse towards Palestinians, looting, and destruction of property" that is familiar to soldiers. [2]

6. Breaking the Silence › Israeli soldiers talk about the occupied ... www.breakingthesilence.org.il/

Israeli Soldiers' Testimonies from the Occupied Territories, 2000-2010. Now available to order on ... Breaking the Silence news, Facebook live feed, Twitter live feed ... Israeli soldiers breaking the silence on the occupation of Palestine. Former ...

7. Former Israeli soldiers disclose routine mistreatment of Palestinian ... www.guardian.co.uk › News › World news › Israel

Aug 26, 2012

Booklet of testimonies of former Israeli soldiers describes beatings, ... Israeli veteran reflects on everyday ...

End the Occupation

US Campaign to End the Israeli Occupation

A national coalition of nearly 400 groups, the US Campaign to End the Israeli Occupation works to end U.S. support for Israel's occupation of the Palestinian West Bank, Gaza and East Jerusalem. We support a U.S. policy that upholds freedom, justice and equality.

Need Resources?

Get them here.

Take Action.

Get Involved.

Give.

Sustain Our Work.

END U.S. SUPPORT OF ISRAELI POLICIES
Challenge military & diplomatic support of Israel's human rights abuses. >>

BOYCOTT, DIVESTMENT & SANCTIONS
Support freedom, equality & justice by isolating Israeli apartheid. >>

STAND AGAINST APARTHEID
Demand human rights & equality for Palestinians. >>

COMMEMORATE THE NAKBA
Stand with refugees & support their Right of Return. >>
The US Campaign is seeking interns for Spring Semester 2012. Interns work 10-30 hours per week under supervision of the US Campaign staff in its Washington, DC, office. Interns are needed to help in our following programmatic areas: Policy, BDS, Media / Tech Support, and Coalition Building.

DO YOU WORK FOR HUMAN RIGHTS?

Join the Club!

Human rights advocates are often under-sourced and over-stretched. But by pooling our resources, we sustain our work and build the coalition we need in order to channel our diverse efforts into a torrent of support for policies that uphold freedom, justice and equality.

END THE OCCUPATION

US CAMPAIGN

US_Campaign Is BDS Going Mainstream? Recent media coverage of our work! FOX, CBS, MSNBC, NYT, Rolling Stone, BBC, NPR! ow.ly/gaw2E 21 minutes ago · reply · retweet · favorite intifada A message of hate: See what the Israeli embassy in Dublin put out as its Christmas greeting bit.ly/UXzv87 4 hours ago · reply · retweet · favorite

US_Campaign Happy Holidays! Make sure to stay away from products made in illegal Israeli settlements! #SodaStream#AhavaEndTheOccupation.org4 hours ago · reply · retweet · favorite

US_Campaign Roots of Resistance: 25 year retrospective on the first intifada #Palestineow.ly/ga2Rh3 hours ago · reply · retweet · favorite
Free Palestine Movement

The Free Palestine Movement (FPM) is a California-based 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. We are a human rights organization, have several working groups inside and outside the U.S., are not affiliated with any other organization(s)*, and comply with U.S. and international law.

Our mission is to challenge Israeli policies and actions that deny Palestinians their human rights, and in particular the right of unfettered access to all of Palestine. We adhere to the principles of non-violence in direct actions that exercise Palestinian rights in defiance of restrictions imposed by Israeli authorities. We partner with other organizations in projects that are consistent with our mission statement and points of unity.

We are a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation, U.S. tax identification number 20-5516191, authorized by the Internal Revenue Service to receive tax-exempt donations for human rights advocacy.

Our Mission

The purpose of Free Palestine Movement is to defend and advocate for the human rights of all Palestinians, and in particular the right of access to all of Palestine. We propose to support these rights by defying barriers imposed by Israeli and international authorities upon travel and trade to, from and within Palestine for Palestinians and persons invited by Palestinians, such as visitors, human rights observers, humanitarian aid workers, journalists, merchants or others, and to impose pressure and sanctions upon any parties that deny such rights.

We are an accredited NGO of the United Nations.

* Regardless of some media reports and claims, there is no connection or working relationship between our California-based Free Palestine Movement and Yasser Kashlak's
"Free Palestine Movement" which is a completely separate entity located in Lebanon.

Contents of #4
Jerusalem March
Palestinian Non-Violence
UN Condemns Settlements
Americans for Peace Now
Jean Zaru, Occupied with Nonviolence
Rev. of Two Books  Beinart and Bar-On Atzmon, The Wandering Who

Contents of #5
APN: Reject the Levy Report
Qumsiyah’s Newsletter: Gradual Destruction of Indigenous Palestinians Qumsiyah, Destruction of Palestinian State
Palestinian Nonviolent Resistance
Leila Khaled Resistance Fighter
Palestinian Gandhi
Palestinian Nakba
Bedisha, Testimonies of Palestine 2011
3 Films:
Christian Zionism, With God on Our Side
Palestinian Child, Miral
Wall in Binin, 5 Broken Cameras

END ISRAEL-PALESTINIAN NEWSLETTER #7

--
Dick Bennett
My blog:
War Department/Peace Department
http://jamesrichardbennett.blogspot.com/Newsletters
http://www.omnicenter.org/newsletter-archive/Index:
http://www.omnicenter.org/omni-newsletter-general-index/
National/International Days
See Newsletters
Peace, Justice, Ecology Birthdays
See INMOtion
jbennet@uark.edu
(479) 442-4600
2582 Jimmie Ave.
Fayetteville, AR 72703