Daisy Bates was a complex, unconventional, and largely forgotten heroine of the civil rights movement who led the charge to desegregate the all-white Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas in 1957.

Filmmaker Sharon La Cruise Discusses Daisy Bates and Black History Month

We caught up with filmmaker Sharon La Cruise to talk about how she came to the project, and why so many people have never heard of this central figure in the civil rights movement.

The Little Rock Nine faced unimaginable verbal abuse and threats to their very lives. Was it ethical for Bates's NAACP to put children on the front lines of the desegregation battle — even if they volunteered to be there or chose to be there?
