A good chance for people to get comfy talking about race in America. It can be done, and can be less painful than it sounds. April Fools is on the people who don’t get it.

This 6-part series of movies and discussions will bring together people who care about justice.

First in the series is "The People Speak" -- based on Howard Zinn’s work, it’s an overview of race, class and gender in the US. Discussion will zing.

Sponsored by the Civil Rights Roundtable

Syria! Complex tidal wave of tragedy

Rescheduled:

Nonviolent Struggle in Syria: Why It Still Matters

Saturday March 14
2:00 pm at OMNI Center
Dr. Mohja Khaf, Syrian American and professor of English at UA

It could all have been so different. A nonviolent uprising started Syria on a path to democracy that has been derailed by political intrigue at multiple levels. Dr. Khaf will talk about the nonviolent movement that her family has been a significant part of. Her passionate but careful assessment will clarify many of the issues before the country right now, and provide a nuanced perspective that is totally absent in the news.
